

ABSTRACT

An indexable vacuum formed nursery tray and a method of making same, the tray being formed from a sheet of polymer material and including a plurality of rows of vacuum formed cells positioned between at least two spaced rows of indexing apertures formed in the sheet and wherein the plastic sheet has a thickness at least at the zones containing the indexing apertures greater than the minimum thickness of the sheet of polymer material prior to forming.